

Mr CHEUK Man Yung (2001 BEngEE)

Mr Cheuk is currently a IECC Network manager at the MTR Corporation since 2013. He graduated from CityU BEng (EE) in 2001.

During his study with CityU EE, the most important lesson he learnt is to put theories into practice. With ample opportunities to obtain hands-on experiences, such as laboratory sessions and EE departmental projects, he gains a better understanding of the learning materials and its real-world connections.

To him, students should maximize their learning experiences by making good use of the resources provided by the university, as well as to take initiative to contact the professors if problems arise. He also reminds our current EE students not only to choose courses according to personal interests, but considering their future career pathway.

Students who want to be registered professionally as an engineer, like in CEng, HKIE, should understand what requirements and working experience they need to achieve before they graduate.
